2023 Volume 4
Oct-Dec

NYSHC President's Message September 26, 2023

From: Pauline Burnes, President, NYS Horse Council, Inc.

I live in the beautiful Southern Tier of Western New York in Allegany County, which is blessed to have over 46,000 acres of State Forest land. The leaves are changing color rapidly, with the brilliant scarlet red maple trees leading the charge, resulting in a tapestry of glorious shades of red, orange, yellow and green of the deciduous forest and evergreens. I am looking forward to participating in the NYS Horse Council Fall Pleasure Ride at Brookfield, to see old friends and make new ones.

A special thanks goes to Cathy Floetke and the many volunteers who spend hours planning to continue the legacy of this significant annual gathering of horses, riders, and families at the Madison County Fairgrounds during the first week of October.

Another special event to be held at Cornell University on Saturday, October 14 is the in person NYSHC Annual General Membership (AGM) meeting. This will be held at the Veterinary College with special speakers on equine tick-borne diseases, equine reproduction, equine mortality composting, and special tours led by veterinarians at our premier veterinary college in NY State. Members and non-members are encouraged to attend, the cost is only $35 per person which covers a light breakfast in the morning, delicious catered luncheon, and beverages. The Cornell men's polo team has a game in the early evening, which attendees may attend as a separate event. Please check the NYSHC website for registration details. Please RSVP by October 6, 2023. I hope to see you there!

The NYSHC offers two special awards, the Lifetime Achievement Award and the Horse Person of the Year. Please check out the NYSHC website for more information, and send nominations to Lisette Ruotolo, Western NY Region Vice President by October 6, 2023. Her contact information is on the NYSHC website. We would like to announce the awards at the NYSHC AGM on October 14.

Whether you participate in horse shows, racing, eventing, trail riding or any other equestrian pursuit, I encourage you to have CPR and First Aid training. As a former Emergency Medical Technician and American Red Cross Instructor-Trainer in CPR/AED and First Aid I always carry First Aid supplies in my vehicle and on the trail. Last Saturday, while leading a trail ride on the DEC West Almond Trails, one of the horses kicked at another with sharp hooves landing square on a rider's leg. When I looked behind to see what the commotion was all about, I saw blood through blue jeans, which was enough for me to activate 911. But...we had no cell service, so I climbed down from my horse and reached into my first aid kit while others were getting the rider off his horse and on the ground. Assessing the injury, I had some thick bleeding control types of pads and gauze wrap. Thankfully, bones were not broken and there was no arterial bleeding. We were able to get the rider back to the camping area, where his wife drove him to the Emergency Room miles away to receive 12 sutures to close the deep, gaping wound.

A couple of riders normally carry first aid supplies but did not have them that day. The DEC Ranger was not available to respond. I sent two riders out to get to a spot where they did have cell service and call 911, but as a team, not alone. Just a reminder, if you don't have first aid training, please get it. If you don't have a first aid kit to take with you on the horse, please make one. If you are going out with friends on a trail ride and other riders show up, trade emergency contact information.

Enjoy this glorious fall weather, be safe, and Happy Trails! I'll see you at Brookfield or Cornell!

Begin Again Horse Rescue
Jennifer Lilly

There have been some very exciting developments lately at Begin Again Horse Rescue In Lima, NY! It all began a few months ago with the donation of a farmette in Perry, NY, by the family of the late equestrienne, Dinah Hoyt Taylor. The property was listed and sold, which enabled us to begin building a barn to honor her memory. The new barn will include eight 12x12 box stalls, a wash stall, rest room and feed room. The stalls will be removed from the pre-existing indoor arena, allowing training to resume under cover. Construction has begun and we are looking forward to a barn providing the equines and staff of Begin Again an improved facility!

On September 9th Begin Again Horse Rescue hosted the 3rd Annual Charity Challenge Obstacle Competition at the Hemlock Fairgrounds. 62 entries braved the rainy conditions to round out an absolutely wonderful day of horsemanship and great experiences for all. Under the expert guidance of judge, Bonnie Hayne, horses from Miniatures to Draft crosses negotiated an arena of 12 tests of skill and desensitization both ridden and in hand. Special awards were given to Judy Fuller Brown/Tennessee Wind Chimer for the Highest Combined Age, Alexandria Howe/Milo for Best Dressed, and Aimee Shultz/Skip To My Lulu for the Highest Scoring Rescue Horse. Everyone agreed they are looking forward to coming back in 2024!

Signs of Abuse

Neglect and abuse of horses is a big issue in the world today. Often neglect is not intentil, but comes out of ignorance, loss of interest, or personal crisis. These are not excuses for the neglect and should be remedied. Horses found in questionable situations are investigated by local law enforcement officials and cruelty investigators. If the case is indeed neglect and/or abuse, we may be asked to assist by officials, in which case the horse may be removed and brought to us. After receiving a veterinary evaluation, the horse will start rehabilitation and, hopefully, get back on the road to health and happiness.

Please notify your local Humane Society, SPCA and local law enforcement if you are questioning the condition of any animal. You may contact us for more information. Horse abuse and neglect can occur anywhere, from any backyard pasture, to a private or public boarding stable. Besides the obvious (no food, water, or shelter), the following are some additional signs of abuse and neglect:

- Unusually thin (spine and hips protruding)
- Lack of condition – dull coat & glassy eyes
- Untended and overgrown hooves
- Lethargic manner
- Limping (any form of lameness) or extreme stiffness
- Reluctant to move from a “sawhorse” stance (front legs extended)
- Unusual discharge from nose, mouth, eyes, or wound
- Weakness or distress
- Cuts & whip marks
- Spur marks
- Tack sores
- Extreme fear, depression and distrust
- Unattended wounds/injuries that are infected, ulcerated, or oozing

Alfred University Equine Business Management Degree Takes Off with NYS Approval

Equestrian studies now come with the option of a BS in Equine Business Management. The New York State Education Department this week granted its approval of Alfred University's new major in Equine Business Management, offered through the University's College of Business. Mark Lewis, Dean of the College of Business, said he is "very enthusiastic" about students whom the Business College will serve through the new program.

Alfred University undergraduates may begin declaring a major in Equine Business Management effective for the Fall semester of 2023. They anticipate between five and ten students in the major in Fall 2023, with new students entering every year right out of high school.

According to Steve Shank, Director of the Equestrian Program, future employment prospects for EBM majors include working in the horseracing sector; managing brood mare and equestrian programs/facilities; equestrian therapy; rescue and sanctuary management; and teaching in equine academic institutions.

New Committee Formed
Equine Emergency Fund (Benevolence Committee)
Colleen Segarra, Chair`

Members

Colleen Segarra, Gary Slate, Sharon Slate, Lissette Ruotolo, Stephanie Fitzpatrick, Pauline Burnes

1. Who do we want to help – for now, just horses, with direct payments to vendors, initial $100 at discretion of chair for urgent/immediate needs, $500 cap per situation. Eventually could open up to more. Most emergencies are also assisted by local community, go fund me and other local agencies, we would most likely not be the sole source of support, but we can be the first responders once funding is in place.
2. What do we want to provide – emergency funding for necessities such as hay, grain, emergency veterinary, emergency transport, etc. Each case will be considered separately.
3. Insurance seldom covers all expenses. What are things are not normally covered by insurance? Colleen will check with her Farm Family agent to see what is normally covered in event of loss.
4. What will be the criteria i.e. must already be a NYSHC membership. Need to come up with ideas for criteria. What are the terms of what the NYSHC is willing to do. The local chapters should be the front line to oversee the expenditure.
5. Funding – tshirt sales, state level events in 2024, solicit donations, apply for grants, some equine organizations have grants we can apply for, solicit at chapter events, ask chapters with events and clinics if they would donate a portion from a voluntary check off. Can be deducted from fee, or can be a voluntary donation by participant. Ask chapters to put out donation jars at events. Possible partner with Tractor Supply for donations or discounts; Colleen will inquire with regional manager. Members get first priority; based on available resources we can consider other requests later. Funds will be kept as a separate line item by Steve when doing accounting, Colleen will reach out to him. He may also have a sample thank you letter. The committee will handle thank you letters. Lissette could have her secretary handle sending thank you letters.
6. Solicitation letter template – Lissette will do first draft, committee will give input, and committee will handle personalized thank you letters.
Application – emergency expenditures can be made on a discretionary basis, if expenses are not approved, owners will reimburse the nyshc. Parties agree that these are expenses that are not covered by insurance, should insurance cover any portion of the expenses. Find out if they have an insurance policy; if we pay for a covered expense, we would expect reimbursement. Up to $500, provide proof of receipts. Sometimes local feed stores will help with donations.
7. Colleen will draft an application for committee review. Applications considered on a case by case basis. Authorize committee chair to expend up to $100 and have a majority vote on applications. If cases are misrepresented and do not qualify, reimbursement will be required.
8. Send an email blast to all members when there is an emergency, let them know there is an Equine Emergency Fund.

Microchips 101 and the Game-Changing Bio-Therm Technology

Andrea Barber

In the past, horses endured invasive and unsightly identification methods such as ear marking, tattooing, and freeze-branding. Fortunately, technology has ushered in a significant advancement in permanent identification: microchips. In this article, we will delve into the world of microchips, exploring what they are, their benefits, the implantation process, and the revolutionary Bio-Therm microchips.

Microchips: A Compact Solution

Microchips are tiny implantable devices that store unique identification information about an individual horse. About the size of a grain of rice, these microchips are typically constructed from biocompatible materials that pose no harm to the horse's body. Each microchip bears a distinct alphanumeric code, serving as an indelible means of identifying the horse. The cost of both the chips and the implantation procedure is relatively affordable, with many veterinarians charging less than $50 for the service.

Benefits of Microchipping

1. Permanent Identification: Microchipping offers permanent and tamper-proof identification throughout a horse's life. Numerous low-cost databases, in addition to many breed registries, allow horse owners to register their microchips, providing ownership information.
2. Emergency Identification: In scenarios involving natural disasters, accidents, or theft, identifying and reuniting horses with their owners can be a daunting task. Microchips simplify this process by providing instant access to the horse's identification details.
3. Compliance: Some registries, shows, and breeding judgements now require horses to be microchipped for positive identification.
4. Medical Records and Health Management: Microchips enable the tracking of crucial medical information about the horse, making them invaluable tools for both owners and veterinarians.

The Implantation Process

1. Select a Veterinarian/Pre-Procedure Checkup: Start by finding a licensed veterinarian experienced in equine microchipping. They possess the necessary knowledge and equipment for a safe and efficient procedure. Before implantation, a thorough examination by the vet ensures the horse is in good health and suitable for the procedure.
2. Site Preparation: The chosen area, typically the left side of the horse's neck, is cleaned and sterilized to minimize the risk of infection. Many veterinarians administer a local anesthetic to enhance the horse's comfort during the procedure.
3. Implantation: Using a specialized syringe-like device, the veterinarian inserts the microchip just beneath the horse's skin. This process is quick and minimally invasive.
4. Verification: To confirm the microchip's correct functioning, the veterinarian uses a microchip scanner to read its unique code.
5. Record Keeping: Maintaining records of the microchip number and the associated database registration is essential. This information should be readily accessible for emergencies or when transferring ownership of the horse.

Bio-Therm Microchips: A Revolutionary Advancement

In recent years, the equine industry has witnessed a groundbreaking development in microchip technology—the introduction of Bio-Therm microchips. These state-of-the-art devices offer an exciting feature that sets them apart from traditional microchips: temperature-sensing capabilities.

Bio-Therm microchips are equipped with thermosensitive capabilities, enabling horse owners and veterinarians to easily monitor the horse's body temperature. This innovation eliminates the need for traditional thermometers and the waiting game, as taking your horse's temperature becomes as simple as scanning its neck.

The Bio-Therm chip displays both the horse's ID number and body temperature when scanned

Reading microchip is as easy as gliding the scanner over the horse's neck

Regular temperature monitoring is crucial, as sudden temperature spikes can signal health issues like fever or infection. Early detection can be vital for prompt treatment. Furthermore, the temperature data collected by Bio-Therm microchips provides valuable insights into your horse's health over time. By tracking temperature trends, you and your vet can proactively identify and address potential health issues.

To use Bio-Therm's temperature-sensing capabilities without a veterinarian's assistance, a microchip scanner must be purchased, typically costing around $300. While this may seem a bit pricey, it's a one-time investment that will serve you over the course of your horse's life. Additionally, the same scanner can be used for other pets, such as dogs and cats, if they have microchips with the same technology. Larger farms may want to explore the additional health and location tracking capabilities offered via the EquiTrace app (subscription required) that can be linked to the scanner.

Microchipping has become an indispensable tool in modern equine management, offering permanent identification, proof of ownership, and enhanced security for horses. The introduction of Bio-Therm microchips represents a significant leap forward in this technology, providing not only identification but also real-time temperature monitoring and health insights. Embracing this advancement ensures that our horses receive the attention and care they deserve.
